ASP Microcomputers

Press Release

Who's on first?

Melbourne, Australia 15th February 2006 - ASP Microcomputers has just released the newest product in its well known range of business management software. As the name suggests, Rostermatic™ automates and simplifies that onerous and most complicated of tasks, "The Roster System".

"We're continually looking for ways to help business improve efficiency through technology. Rostering has always been a slow, frustrating task, and once you're done, how do you advise staff of their roster? Now your PC can be used to make the task much faster and easier, without buying expensive software. Rostermatic™ works from the planning stage through to implementation like no other package. You can now quickly and easily update a roster and send it to the relevant people, anywhere, anytime... instantly."

Robert Kogoi- Director Marketing.

Rosters are created by the roster administrator, through a secure internet connection, then viewed by staff with password access or distributed via email and SMS. Users can swap shifts or apply for holidays with 'a click of the mouse' with all data securely stored on the Rostermatic server.

Rostermatic produces easy to read charts by "day", "week", or "calendar", from holidays to shifts, created the way you want to work. Of course these charts can even be printed out and stuck on the fridge door.
